Torsten worked with our team at Ascendant for roughly six years. He was one of our earliest developers and served along the way as a senior engineer and mentor to junior developers. During his tenure, he furthered his expertise with Scala, Lift, and MongoDB, and become substantively knowledgeable of financial services, asset classes, and trading patterns (from the perspective of compliance).

He worked with his peers seamlessly, engaged the consultancy side of our business as needed, and had direct, daily interaction with our product developers and testers.

Torsten thrived in our distributed, virtual environment, and handled the pressures related to a multi-tenant SaaS platform financed on the back of an existing legacy-based business with grace. He was able to balance the difficult, industry-specific nuances of GRC with the problem solving, engineering-centric mandate of our team. Were it not for our acquisition by private equity, and shifting capital expenditures, he would remain with us indefinitely, as I would want.

I am available to answer specific questions regarding Torsten at the convenience of any appropriate party, and can be reached below.
